EVENT DESCRIPTION:

A panel of leading thinkers with diverse perspectives in military operations, robotics, law and ethics will address decision making situations associated with the employment of humans, remote and robotic systems. Panelists include a future commander, an operator, a roboticist, an industry expert, a lawyer, and an ethicist. They will be asked for their guidance on ethical dilemmas embedded in a South China Sea scenario in the year 20YY involving regional unrest and a diverse set of stakeholders. In this scenario, unmanned and manned systems will be deployed in response to escalating political tensions, and fictional warfighters will be faced with challenging and sometimes ambiguous situations and decisions associated with these new technologies. The panelists each will be given an opportunity to respond to the scenario and the moderator will facilitate discussion of their responses. DoD stakeholders throughout the San Diego region are invited to attend the event and the session is available remotely to an audience on the NPS campus in Monterey and
